

Index

Introduction	1
Chapter I: Organic food consumption behaviour	11
I Consumption behaviour regarding organic food from a marketing perspective –A systematic literature review	11
Chapter II: Sensory preferences	73
II.1 Cross-national sensory segments in the organic market based on stated preferences for the five basic tastes	73
II.2 Core organic taste: Preferences for sensory attributes of organic food among European consumers	97
II.3 Organic food labels as a signal of sensory quality – insights from a cross- cultural consumer survey	127
II.4 Preference for naturalness of European organic consumers –First evidence of an attitude-liking-gap	147
Chapter III: Excursus	173
III Developing an authenticity model of traditional food specialties: does the self-concept of consumers matter?	173
Summary	193
Publications and presentations at scientific events	206
Acknowledgements	207
Curriculum Vitae	209