

Contents

Preface	v
Graduate Academic Writing in Europe in Comparison: A Research-based Approach to Metalanguage and Genre Josef Schmied	1
English for English Studies: Designing Academic Vocabulary Instruction for English Studies Majors Helen Forbes	25
Interplay of Teacher and Peer Online Feedback for Academic Writing: Preliminary Insights Elena Ončevska Ager	37
Teaching Academic Writing to EFL Students: The Process Approach Irina Petrovska, Bisera Kostadinovska	45
Attaining Academic Literacy: Reforming University Language Instruction for Polish Doctoral Students Magdalena Rogozińska	53
Connecting Adverbials in Student Writing: Usage in the ChemCorpus and Comparable Corpora Sven Albrecht	67
"It is probably the reason why..." Hedging in BA and MA Theses by German ESL Students Dana Beyer	81
Usages of may and will in Chinese and German Student Papers: A Corpus-Based Comparison Jessica Küchler	99

viii Schmied (ed)

Code Glosses in Student Writing: A Comparative Study of Albanian and German BA Theses Jacinta Edusei	119
Introductions by Serbian Native Speakers in Academic Writing Jasmina Djordjevic	131
Expressing Commitment and Detachment in Non-Native English BA Graduate Papers Zorica Trajkova	143
Structural, Textual and Commentary Linkers in Albanian PhD Dissertations: A Pilot Study Bledar Toska	163
Authorial Identity in PhD Theses in Albania(n) Armela Panajoti	177
Language Transfer from L2 to L1 in Academic Writing: The Case of Macedonian ESL Teachers Silvana Neshkovska, Jovanka Lazarevska Stanchevska	187